

We can get not only English skills.

I think teenagers should study abroad and I want to go too.

I have three reasons. First, They can know another country's rules, culture and atmosphere. There are many types of people in the world. If teenagers study abroad, they can learn the world and broaden their horizons. Second, If teenagers study abroad to the countries that are spoken English, they can learn more native English. In the future, when teenagers get old, they might work in the company as workers. At that time, I think it is better to speak English well to success some tasks with another country workers. What is more, when travel to abroad, it is more fun to speak native people in English than non talking. Both are because English is universal language. At last, exchange students faced with difficulties. It seems bad truth, but I think it is good for me. If I study abroad, I will be in trouble. Because I can't speak English very well and I am afraid a little now and maybe in exchange year too. However, I decide to not to give up because ^{if} I get over it, I can get a special experiences. And also I can be confident and strong more. In these reasons, teenagers should go to study abroad. But I think it isn't only teenagers, every ages people especially who interested in overseas should go to study abroad.
